

JOHN WISDEN'S
CRICKETERS' ALMANACK
FOR 1911

WILLOWS REPRINT

PUBLIC SCHOOL CRICKET IN 1910.

BY C. TOPPIN.

“Murmur at nothing ; if our evils are reparable, it is ungrateful ; if remediless, it is vain.” A wise precept this. Yet I am afraid that in point of fact among the players and spectators at Lord’s and elsewhere, from the beginning of May to the end of August, there was an almost unprecedented amount of murmuring. Vain doubtless, as it lies not within the power of mortal man to control the eccentricities of the clerk of the weather. But ungrateful ? Well, possibly so from the farmer’s point of view, for rumour says that the root crops are portentous, but hardly so from the cricketer’s. For when the game is played on sodden wickets and under a gloomy sky, when neither batsmen, bowler, nor fielder can get fair foothold, when, in short, the winning or losing of a match depends too much upon the luck of the toss, and too little upon the respective merits of the opposing side, even the optimistic Mr. Jingle might hesitate to describe cricket as a “capital game,” “smart sport,” or “fine exercise.”

And yet when all is said that can be said of the iniquities of last summer’s weather, we cannot but admit that we have been provided with an extraordinary number of really sporting games. County cricket gave us a quite remarkable crop of fighting games and tight finishes, and the Public Schools supplied their quota too. Such matches, for instance, as the Eton and Harrow, Clifton and Rugby, Bradfield and Radley, or Brighton and Lancing will live long in the memories of those who were the fortunate spectators, and longer still in the recollections of those who took part in them. And there were other redeeming features in the cricket, if not in the season. Even though the slow and medium-paced bowlers had things all their own way, as might be expected under the conditions which prevailed, and though the veteran brigade more than held its own, another proof, if one is needed, that the cricket was not of the fast and furious kind, still once again after an unduly long interval there has been not only a marked improvement in the standard of University cricket, but, even better omen for the future of English cricket, a notable influx into the arena of first-class matches of really promising school-boy players. While the Gentlemen could not be held to be properly represented without the inclusion of at least two or three undergraduate cricketers, three of our strongest county elevens found places in August for cricketers fresh from their school elevens, and both with bat and in the field each one of the débutants did yeoman service for his side, and amply justified his selection. Nor are there wanting those who say that the best all-round boy cricketer of the season, Fowler, the Eton captain, who seems to possess beyond his fellows the happiest of all gifts, that of rising to the occasion, might not have been found very much out-classed had he been invited to represent the Gentlemen at Lord's. Further than this trials were given by Notts to Carr of Sherborne, by Somerset to Critchley-Salmonson of Winchester, by Lancashire to Bardsley of last year's Shrewsbury side, and by Middlesex to Crutchley and Anson of last year's Harrow eleven. All this is as it should be, and for the good of the game. In this promise shown by young cricketers and even more, perhaps, in the recognition of that promise by the selectors of county teams lies the hope that the visit of an Australian Eleven in 1912 will not find us in such a hopeless muddle as we were eighteen months ago. "Let the boy win his spurs," Edward III is reported to have said on an historic occasion, and until we give our young cricketers occasional opportunities for winning their spurs, farewell to every chance of recovering our lost supremacy. Past experience should have taught us that ultra conservatism and sentimental attachment to old favourites are mistaken principles as applied to the selection of a representative Eleven, and it is a self-evident fact that several counties are at this time paying the penalty of having allowed middle-aged cricketers to block the way of the rising generation, while others in their turn are profiting by timely application of the pruning knife.

Taking this year's School elevens as a whole, it would not be an unfair criticism to say that the bowling was weak, the fielding not so good as it should have been, and the batting exceptionally strong, a curious verdict, surely, when the climatic conditions are taken into account. In connection with the batting I am not thinking only of two or three who are obviously marked out for future distinction, but of the fact that practically every School of importance had two or more members of its Eleven, who, with fortune and added experience, may win names for themselves. If I am correct in my opinion that the bowling was weak, it will not be easy to assign a reason for it. I do not believe that it was due to lack of interest. I prefer to think that it was due to accidental lack of material. But for weakness in fielding there can be no attempt either for excuse or explanation. I believe I should have many supporters if I were to say that no School side has any business to be weak in its fielding. It is all a matter of constant and sensible practice in covering the ground, picking up the ball, and returning it quick and true to the wicket, and above all in catching. And I should add, further, that any boy, who has an eye for the game at all, can make himself into a good fielder. I well remember the case of a boy in a School, in which I am interested, who was an excellent batsman, but one of the worst fielders I ever saw in any company. Yet in the University match he was acknowledged to be the finest fielder on either side, a result which was accomplished by unceasing practice. If School captains ever take the trouble to read these remarks, I beg of them, if they want to win their matches and turn out a side which is a credit to their School, to consider no effort excessive, which would ensure precision and activity in the field, and to realise that nothing affects the whole morale of an Eleven so deeply as indifferent fielding.

Eton were a side whose capabilities as a combination it is not easy to gauge. It would not be true to say that they were a great Eleven. I doubt whether they could even be described as a good one. And yet, with a cricketer of the calibre of Fowler, they could never be other than dangerous. By this I do not mean to say that they were a "one horse" affair. Far from it. But what I do mean is that without Fowler they would only have been mediocre, with him they commanded respect. Columns have been written on that wonderful game at Lord's explaining the "why" and the "wherefore," and it is hardly necessary for me, who did not see the match, to say more than that it was simply a case of a fine cricketer rising to the occasion and dominating the proceedings. They were unlucky in not actually beating Winchester, for another half hour's play would almost certainly have settled the match in their favour. Of Fowler I have already spoken. He is a fine all-round cricketer whom most people would pick first on their side from the School cricketers of the year. Like more than one other prominent boy cricketer of this season, the Army will claim his services. More's the pity. If heredity counts for anything, Steel should have a future before him. His bowling performance of seven wickets for 17 runs in the second innings of the Winchester match was a great one, and be it remembered that the ball was wet and the wicket easier for the batsmen than for the bowler. Moreover he is full of skill as a batsman, if a bit too impatient to get going at once. Probably the best and soundest batsman on the side was Lubbock, and a capital wicket-keeper as well. He should come very near his 'Blue' at Oxford before he goes down. Nor must Manners be forgotten, if for no other reason than for his plucky partnership with Boswell at Lord's; a fine field and courageous batsman he was of great service to his side. Tufnell, who takes charge of the side next year, is a promising wicket-keeper, and has the makings of a good bat. In a word they were a side of great possibilities. Judged by results the Winchester Eleven must be written down as a weak lot. It is true that they had a really good bowler in Wells-Cole, and another, Fleming, who is quite good enough for most School sides, and their fielding was quite sound, but their batting was very mediocre, only two of them producing averages over 20. Can it be that that insidious game, golf, is playing havoc with the Wykehamist style of batting? If, as I believe to be the case, the Winchester boys are allowed to mix the two games to any great extent, the cricket will undoubtedly suffer. The batting broke down badly in the Eton match, and the collapse in the second innings was dreadful. It is true that they had to defend the situation late in the day, when the light was none of the best, but even so a little more resolution would have put a different complexion on the drawn game. Of the bowling of Wells-Cole it is impossible to speak too highly. His 63 wickets for 11 runs each was a fine performance, and the Wykehamists would have fared badly without him. He bowls slow left-hand with both swerve and break-back and keeps a capital length. Fleming did good service both with bat and ball, but he is not a really class player, while Woosman was probably the soundest batsman among them, and ended up with a capital average. Salmonson, who is young and very tall, should make a good bat when he has filled out more physically. If I might venture to proffer advice to those Winchester boys who hope to be good cricketers, my counsel would be to eschew golf, or at least leave it to the holidays or maturer years. Harrow were a side who did well in their early matches, and then made history, though not to their own satisfaction, in their great game at Lord's. Many of the criticisms levelled against them after their débâcle were harsh and unjustifiable. "One of the best sides seen at Harrow for some years before the Lord's match, and after it one of the worst" was one which I heard from a cricketer who should have known better; and other criticisms in similar vein. It is impossible to put down their extraordinary collapse to nerves only, for in their previous games they had shown any amount of grit. I prefer to think that they simply met their master in Fowler, who had a wicket which exactly suited him. The question of nerves did not preponderate, and they met the same fate which has overtaken many another good side. They were just as powerless as another fine batting side was on the same ground four days before. And who will venture to say what was the proper game for the side to play under the circumstances? Their season's cricket was full of incident. After losing the first match by two runs, they did not again experience defeat till they found their Sedan at Lord's, and five days after that they again collapsed against the very moderate bowling of Haverford. The batting was as a whole not sound: there seemed to be no one of real merit, while the bowling was pretty dependable, if undistinguished. The best player on the side was undoubtedly Earle, whose fast bowling would of course have been more successful in a finer summer. It seems almost a pity that the Army will claim his future services. Useful cricketer too was Hillyard, who played a capital innings at Lord's, and did good service as a bowler during the season. Hopley and Wilson are batsmen rather of the careful order.

If the merits of the Rugby Eleven rested only on their performance against Marlborough, they might well be reckoned a great side, for, weakened though their opponents were by the absence of their best bowler, it could with truth be pleaded that Rugby lacked the service of Thorne, who was at least one of their best change bowlers, and the innings victory was a fine performance. The fact is, that by the end of July the Midland School, who had gone on improving all the term, were somewhat of the nature of a surprise packet, and if not a great side were at least a very good one and at the top of their form. Their performances in their preliminary games were nothing remarkable, while it did not betoken great strength to do no more than 'tie' their game with Clifton. A study of their averages is interesting, for it points to the fact that, while there was no cricketer on the side of outstanding merit, nine of them had batting averages ranging from 20 to 34, and there were two or three bowlers, who, as the Marlburians found to their cost, had a happy way of rising to the occasion. The best batsman was Fraser, a nervous starter, but very good when he got going. Le Gros was a good all round player, who seldom failed to get runs, and, as a fast bowler, was irresistible at Lord's. Useful player too was Linnington, while Andrews, who was responsible for a fine century at Lord's, is distinctly promising. Keen must have been the disappointment of the Marlborough supporters at the result of their match at Lord's. The eleven had shown such great power in their preliminary games, that even the absence of their crack bowler, Woodroffe, ought not to have affected their morale as it clearly did. But their bowling was clearly weak in comparison to their batting, and the side was therefore imperfectly balanced. Up to their Lord's match their record was unbroken by defeat, though it must be confessed that, except in one case, they never really swamped their opponents. And yet, even in spite of the loss of Woodroffe, they ought to have been capable of accounting for Rugby, but that School seldom fails in grit and determination, and on this occasion was in a winning position well before the end of the first day's cricket. That the Marlburians were extremely strong in batting is beyond dispute, seven at least of them being capable of runs in good company. Patteson's consistent record and final average speak for themselves, and he must be written down as one of the best school batsmen of the year. Nor was Shulldham far behind him either in merit or results. Woodroffe is a really good fast bowler with a high delivery, who, if he maintains his form, should do great execution for his side next year. Womersley and Lagden both with bat and ball were extremely useful. With eight of this year's lot back again next summer, the Marlborough boys should be in a position to make history next year, but they must train on another really good bowler, Perhaps Branson may before then have acquired more spin on his deliveries.

With every prospect of turning out a good side the Westminster boys, like many other schools, could never settle down owing to the succession of wet wickets for both practice and matches. As a result their record is disappointing, only three matches being won and the majority of the rest lost. Perhaps there was some reason beyond the knowledge of the outside critic which induced the Carthusian skipper to put in his opponents after winning the toss. But, without this knowledge, it does seem a rash experiment with the ground soft, and rain in immediate prospect. It was a bowler's wicket throughout, and, if the weather had held up, the Charterhouse defence might have been very severely tested. There was a considerable amount of batting among the Westminster lot, the pick of the bunch being Rawson, a sound and correct left-hander, and Rudd, who gives one the impression of being a natural game player, and who, as he is likely to have three more seasons at school, should do great things for his side before he leaves. Of the bowlers Clarke was easily the best, though he hardly maintained his form of last year. He is also a slashing left hand bat of no mean order, as witness his innings for the Public School eleven at Lord's. On the whole his Charterhouse friends will not be sorry to see the last of him. I notice a grumble in the Carthusian which almost seems justifiable. It is suggested that another School match would be an advantage, I cannot help thinking that, when one of the two old standing fixtures is reduced to a one day match, the allowance is scanty. This year they beat Wellington fairly easily, thanks to some effective bowling by King but they had a really tough fight with Westminster on the sodden wicket. In a low scoring game the Carthusians had 117 to get, having only made 69 in the first effort. When the down-pour eventually stopped the game, they had scored 40 without loss, and so looked like winning. But it is only fair to the Westminster boys to say that it was drizzling all the time they were bowling. Distinctly the feature of this season's cricket at Charterhouse was the performance of their lob bowler Leatham. How useful he was in school matches is shown by the fact that he captured twenty wickets for eight runs apiece, while in all matches he took forty-one wickets for under ten runs apiece—a fine piece of work. Besides the lobs they had in Hudson a goodish slow left hander, whose bowling was not so simple as it looked, and King, a medium fast bowler of some promise. In the batting line Denison was able to introduce some of his brilliant racket strokes into his cricket, but he was hardly sound, and Dowling and Morison were of the distinctly useful type. The fielding was good and the catching safe. Altogether they were an improving side, which was well up to the mark, and I hear that things look rosy for next season. My informant from Wellington sums up the season pessimistically, when he writes. "Of eleven matches we won none, losing five, and somewhat luckily drawing six." If the latter part of the story is literally true, he has some grounds for despondency. And, on examining the records, I am not sure that he was not fairly near the mark. They were a very weak side in every department with the possible exception of the fielding, which, I believe, was quite good. Both their school encounters were lost, and in each case so decisively as to cause no misgivings, and reflections on possibilities. Pank, as a batsman, started the season well, but fell off later, while Hinde ended up with a fair bowling analysis, but with these solitary exceptions it seems not easy to pick out any one else worthy of praise. I heartily wish that I could criticise the side less unkindly, but there it is, the season was not a success, and I wish them better luck next year.

Malvern amply fulfilled the prediction which I ventured to make last year, for they turned out a redoubtable side, who would have taken a lot of beating. They did not meet their masters during the season, and the three games which were left drawn would, in two cases at least, have been victories, if time had allowed. Apart from the school matches, their best win was against Worcestershire Club and Ground who were as usual very strongly represented, including Arnold, Burrows, and Cuffe. To account for such a side on a perfect wicket for 115 runs, and then pass this score with but two wickets down, was a fine performance. The School matches were all won with considerable ease,—Repton by an innings and 45 runs, Clifton by nine wickets, and Haverford by eight wickets. The strength of their batting lay in the fact that any one of the side was prepared to make 50 runs, while no one compiled a century; in other words all could bat, but there was no one who towered above his fellows. The pick of the batsmen were F. G. Naumann, Knight, and Burton, in this order. The bowling brigade were probably the strongest seen at Malvern for a great many years, and they were well backed up by an admirable stumper in Arnold, and, on the whole, excellent fielding. The pick of the bowlers were Burton and Scott, both right hand medium to fast. Burton goes up to Oxford this year, and should be carefully watched. The one thing which may prevent his proving a first-class player is his temperament, which is at present too excitable and easily upset. The side was admirably led by Kevill-Davies, who could do nothing right in the batting line, but he ended up his school cricket with the 'hat trick' in each innings of the Haverford match, and, curiously enough, with the last three balls he delivered in the first innings and the first three of the second innings. The Reptonians had a very moderate, not to say disappointing, season. If the members of the side had developed as they were reasonably expected to do, they might have proved a very fair combination. But no one greatly distinguished himself, and the general results were humdrum. It was not very spirited of Uppingham to decline to pay a visit to Repton because there were cases of measles in the school, and the result was that, apart from the Haverford match, which the Repton boys won in great style, their only School match was with Malvern, whom they found at the top of their form, and very much too strong for them. The batting struck me as spiritless and lacking in enterprise, while, if we except Franklin's excellent wicket-keeping, the attack was moderate and without variety. Of the bowlers I should say that Calthorpe was the most likely, and should be quite useful next year. The batting, I repeat, was somewhat tame, and even Campbell, who played with such distinction for Surrey in August, never produced his real form. Indeed, it is a curious fact that his average for his School was lower than for his County. That he has the makings of a fine bat I firmly believe, but I cannot help thinking that he would be a still finer bat, if he stood up to his full height and used his shoulders more and his forearms less. Popham, Moses and Calthorpe were quite useful batsmen, and it was a distinct misfortune that Ellis, from whom much was expected, was hors de combat nearly all the term owing to an injured knee.

The Uppingham boys had only a moderate season, winning but three of their fixtures. They beat Shrewsbury, after a good game, by eight wickets, after being set to get 178 in an hour and three-quarters—a capital performance—and easily accounted for the Haverford eleven in what was, for the latter, the opening match of their tour. But their bowling was weak and unreliable, and the fielding might have been better. The redeeming feature of their attack was the wicket-keeping of their excellent captain, Tomlin, who goes up to Cambridge with high credentials, and should be looked after by the Light Blue authorities. The batting, on the contrary, was thoroughly good, and the side never failed to make a respectable score. Out and away the best performer was Harper, who had a very successful season. His début for Middlesex was full of promise, though he failed later on the slow wickets: he has any amount of brilliant strokes, but he is a bit too reckless. Palmer and Crosthwaite did capital service, especially in school matches, and both came out with very creditable figures. As most of this year's 'cracks' are leaving, Uppingham will have to look after its laurels next year.

Cheltenham had a highly successful season, losing but two games as against eight wins, but I judge that they were not a great side.

It is true that there were a number of run-getters among them, but there was no real class batsmen, while the bowling, if steady, was lacking in sting, and somewhat of the plain order. The success of their attack was due to consistently good catching. I am credibly informed that not a single chance was missed in their School matches, an enviable record. They were pretty easily beaten by Marlborough, whom they caught at the top of their form, but they comfortably disposed of Clifton, and decisively routed Haileybury with an innings to spare. The Cheltonians scored at a great pace at Lord's against some very moderate Haileybury bowling, the 400 being up by 3.30, with more to follow. It was a stern chase for their opponents, and they never looked like saving the game. Indeed, but for Vincent, who scored 172 for once out, they would have cut a sorry figure. G. E. C. Wood headed the batting figures, but he is hardly a sound player, and yet his defence must be better than it appears, for he made runs regularly, and often when the others failed. Probably the most likely batsmen on the side were Fawcett and Wise, both of whom were at their best in School matches. As I have remarked the bowling was nothing out of the common, with G. D. Wood their best and most reliable performer. The Haileybury boys had only a moderately successful season. Until they met Cheltenham at Lord's their performances in School matches were distinctly encouraging. They decisively beat Wellington and Haverford, while they had a good deal the best of the drawn game with Uppingham. By the way, the Wellington match was a short business. No play was possible on the first day, and on the following day the game was over and won by 4 o'clock. But the Cheltenham boys showed up the weak bowling of the Haileyburians by some fine resolute play, and, giving nothing away, won handsomely in an innings. It seemed hard luck that Vincent should have been on the losing side, for his scores of 54 and 118 not out were fine efforts. He and Sloane-Stanley were the pick of the batsmen, the latter strong on the off-side, but apt to start pulling before he settles down. Geen is described as a first-rate wicketkeeper, and is also a dangerous, if impatient, bat. The brunt of the bowling was borne by Gardiner and Munt, both of whom end up with very creditable figures. The former is a leg swerver of considerable merit, who seldom failed to secure his fair crop of wickets, and the latter a slow left arm bowler, who performed with some success during the earlier games, when the wickets were slower. The Clifton boys had a very moderate season, and yet, if for no other reason, the summer will be remembered for the wonderful 'tie' match with Rugby after nearly 900 runs had been scored. It was a great game, for Rugby headed them by a comfortable margin in the first innings but Richardson, of whom I have a high opinion as a batsmen, came to the rescue with an excellent century, and gave the enemy 184 runs to get. A missed catch, difficult it is true, which resulted in the run that made the game a 'tie' robbed the Cliftonians of victory. In their other School matches, they were pretty easily defeated by Cheltenham, after putting their opponents in on a soft wicket, a dangerous proceeding, surely, with a fourth innings in view, they lost their game to Haverford by two runs, thus reversing the verdict of their previous encounter, when they won by three runs, and they ended up by being decisively beaten by Malvern, who were much too strong for them. In the latter game the margin of defeat by nine wickets seemed at one time to be likely to be much greater, for Clifton followed on in a minority of 170, and lost five wickets for 21, when drizzling rain came on, and severely handicapped the Malvern bowlers. The two best batsmen on the side were Rissik and Richardson, the former of whom played consistently well, and is quite promising, but I believe that the latter, if he has the opportunity, will go further. The bowling figures are not impressive, though Murray did some sterling work.

The doings of the Tonbridge eleven centre almost entirely around that wonderful cricketer F. H. Knott. Seldom, if ever, have the doings of a school boy caused so much interest in the cricket world. An aggregate of over 1,100 runs, containing six centuries, for his school season, with an average of 80, and a jump straight into the strongest county side of the year, where he was not on mere trial, but seemed rather indispensable to its success, would seem to predict that some day in the near future he will take his place among the giants of the game. He appears to have most of the known strokes at his command, but the two points, which I consider are the strongest features of his play, are his watchfulness and the strength of his back play. He seems to be one of very few batsmen who now-a-days, in playing back, attempt to force the ball past the bowler to the boundary. His future as a cricketer will be a matter of great interest. But without Knott the Tonbridge side would have been only moderate. The bowling was ordinary, not to say weak, while the catching was bad; indeed, I have it on good authority that, in the Sherborne and Haverford matches, at least ten more or less easy catches were missed in each game, a poor record this, and one unworthy of Tonbridge traditions. Overshadowed as they were by Knott, Marzetti and Sherwell on more than one important occasion showed that they were no mean batsmen, and both came out with creditable figures. The Bradfield season was disappointing in results, though there was a good deal of material for a respectable side. The run-getting was apt to be left to two or three players, and, if these failed, the rest were likely to collapse. Undoubtedly their best player was Lindsell, a batsman of considerable punishing power and useful bowler, who mixes them well. Pope played two or three hard hit innings, but he is inclined to take too many liberties; indeed, I should judge that a certain vis consilii expers was rather too frequent among the Bradfield players. The bowling was nothing remarkable, though it possessed considerable variety. They had a fine game with Radley, which ended in a victory for the latter by the narrow margin of three runs. The Radley record was only moderate. It is curious how often the Radley ground has promised a sporting finish in the Bradfield match and this year was no exception, for the Radleians just got home, thanks to some excellent all-round cricket by Ames, and brilliant short slip catching by Nugee, when the game was in its most critical stage. But they were not a great side. The most likely player among them was Ames. He bowls fast, and brings the ball down from a great height with plenty of spin and some swerve, and, further, he is a dangerous bat and fine field. Reid, young as yet, is described as a very promising stumper. The batting of the side in general is described as pusillanimous, which, being interpreted in a kindly spirit, means that the majority of the side could not do themselves justice when they got to the wicket. Dulwich had indeed an unfortunate season, winning but one game out of thirteen played and that against their own masters. Their bowling was very weak, and it was not backed up in the field as it should have been, in fact, had it not been for Coleman's excellent work behind the wickets, the attack generally would have been in a sorry way. They lost their games with Tonbridge, Bedford Grammar School and Brighton, in each case by a considerable margin, but they were unfortunate in not accounting for St. Paul's. They had a pair of pretty good bats in Greenwood and Green, the former of whom played some capital cricket in School matches. I hear high praise of Coleman as a stumper, "the best the School has ever produced," says the Alley-nian. The Sherborne representatives were a young lot, and, owing to nervous batting, seldom did themselves justice. As most of them will be back next year, it is to be hoped that they will give a better account of themselves. Their two best performances were a level draw with Tonbridge, and the capital fight they put up against a good M.C.C. side, which included Tarrant, J. W. Hearne, and Murrell. Three players stand out conspicuously above their fellows. Carr, if a bit reckless, is an excellent bat with powerful strokes, and quite a useful fast bowler. Notts gave him a trial during August, and, though he did not greatly distinguish himself, I hope that they will not lose sight of him. Read is a dangerous batsman, and an excellent captain, and Mason's wicket-keeping is described as of high class. With the exception of Corfe, a steady medium paced bowler, the other members of the side call for little comment.

The Rossalians had every reason to be satisfied with their season's work. They turned out a capital side, probably one of the best which has ever represented the school. They easily won their international match with Loretto, thanks to some very level batting, and fine bowling by Edge. Bad weather, which allowed very little play on the first day of the match, robbed them of almost certain victory over Shrewsbury, and they ended up by defeating Haverford with some ease. There were plenty of run-getters among them, they had two good bowlers in James and Edge, while the fielding and stumping were above the average. In fact they were a well balanced side. Edge's batting figures, with an average of 54 and highest score 82, speak for themselves, and he must have been an extremely useful player. The latter remark applies also to James, who heads the bowling list, and played a notable innings against some strong M.C.C. bowling. Davies, though less consistent than Edge, was little inferior to him as a batsman, and, furthermore, he is described as a fine field in the slips. Coldwell was a useful change bowler, and hit up an excellent century against Shrewsbury. Altogether I judge them to have been an eleven worthy to take a high place among the school sides of the year. Shrewsbury had an uneven season. All went well for their first half dozen games, and afterwards they seemed to fall to pieces, a collapse in form which seemed to be due to their weak bowling giving out. This certainly was the case in the fourth innings of the match which gave Uppingham the victory, assisted, it may be, by some weak catching. They certainly had the worst of the deal with Rossall, who, after declaring their first innings, got their opponents out for 95 : and they lost their game with Haverford. The most successful batsman was Parry, though it must be confessed that he owes his position at the head of the table largely to his scoring 112 and 95 not out against the Free Foresters. But I should judge that Boumphrey is the most likely to have a future. He has a good notion of defence, and, when stronger, he should be a fast scorer. As I have suggested the bowling was very weak, and, so far as statistics go, calls for no comment. Sedbergh had a very poor season, winning but one of their ten fixtures. There was plenty of material for quite a good side, but it did not come on as it should have done, owing to inadequate net bowling and coaching. Nevile was the best all-rounder. He captured forty wickets for about ten runs apiece, and made a few useful scores. There is, I am told, considerable promise for next year, and I trust that the authorities will be able, before the summer comes round, to arrange for some competent coaching and professional bowling.

Three out of four School matches were won by Bedford Grammar School, but they were lucky to escape defeat at the hands of Merchant Taylors. The defeated Schools were Dulwich, Leys, and St. Paul's, in each case with plenty to spare. Though the batting was hardly so strong as last year, their bowling and fielding were well up to the mark, and they were altogether a very fair side. Beyond a doubt their best performer was their captain, Grierson, who for two or three seasons has been their best bowler, and this year he added to his laurels by heading the batting averages. He bowls medium-fast left hand, and has quite an extraordinary record in school matches. It will be interesting to see what he does at Cambridge next summer. Leys School had only a poor season, winning but five and losing eight of their sixteen fixtures. Among the latter were Felsted, Bedford Grammar School, and Oundle, though, in the case of the latter game, it is only fair to say that Leys were badly represented. Their best cricketer was Bullen, and Sutcliffe was very useful both with bat and ball. I notice in the School paper a criticism to the effect that the older members of the eleven seem wedded to incorrect methods of batting, which are taking time to eradicate, but that there is promise of better things lower down. The Brighton boys had an excellent season, winning nine matches and only losing two ; indeed, I am assured that they were the best side the school has had for twenty years. They easily vanquished four out of their five rival schools, while the fifth encounter, against Lancing, resulted in a 'tie,' 228 all. It was a fine game, chiefly remarkable for the pluck of the tail of each side. Their most successful batsman was Read, not very stylish, but consistent and effective. The brunt of the attack was borne by Davies and Baker, both of whom did extremely well, and they were well backed up by some good fielding and stumping.

Eastbourne were again unfortunate in having two of their three School matches scratched owing to illness, but they achieved a triumph in defeating King's School, Canterbury, for the first time, thanks to an undefeated century by Maynard, who, by the way, must have been an extremely useful member of his side, for he heads both batting and bowling tables. In the matter of general results they were impartial, six games being won, five lost, and six drawn. Their captain, Tudor, must be a pretty good batsman, but his official 'character' is not encouraging. "Too much wrapped up in himself and his house to make a really good school captain." It is clear that he should try more to 'think imperially.' Felsted, with some very level batting and adequate bowling, came through the season with some credit. The batting, I say, was level, rather than distinguished, and it is not easy to pick out the salient features or individual performances, and the bowling may be dismissed with the same comment. They beat Leys school after a poor game on a slow wicket, but they could only draw with King's School, Canterbury. Serve them right, I say, for their fielding is described as extremely bad ! I notice a good win over Essex Club and Ground, and not at all a bad show against a strong M.C.C. side. The Lancing team played 'in and out' cricket, some of their performances being quite promising, and others unaccountably weak. They were, at best, a patchy side, with two very fair batsmen in Liddelow and Clarke, little variety among the bowlers, good fielding, but very moderate wicket-keeping. They had reason to complain that one or two of their number, from whom much was expected, did not help them more, to wit, their captain, Selby, who was very useful to them last year, and Simms, but the fast bowling of the latter could not be expected to come off in such a season. Their School matches were not the most satisfactory part of their programme, for they collapsed against Christ's Hospital, the Eastbourne game was not played, and the 'tie' match with Brighton, exciting enough in all conscience, must have caused many searchings of heart, and 'if onlys.' Nothing of great importance seems to have occurred in the City of London School season. They were obviously not a very remarkable side, and still handicapped by the distance from their ground, and consequent scanty practise. Of the nine School matches they played, five were lost, three won, and one drawn, the latter with Berkhamsted much in the Citizens' disfavour. With the exception of Robbins, who seems to have bowled well, there is little individual comment possible. The St. Paul's School boys started with the nucleus of a good side, which included many of their best players from last year, but somehow their season was disappointing in its results. I gather that weakness in attack was the main cause of their want of success. But it must be remembered that they fly high, and that the list of their opponents includes, Eton Ramblers, Authentics, Zingari, Incogniti, and M.C.C., and a side, which emerged with credit from such encounters, would have some cause for self-congratulations. As it was, their losses preponderated their wins, and their solitary School victory was at the expense of Mill Hill, whom they beat decisively. Two players, Buckley and Pender, stand out from the rest, and it was unfortunate that the latter's services were not available all the term. Berkhamsted had a poor season, winning but one game out of fifteen. They were left with but two of last year's choices, and, with a young lot at their disposal, they possibly could not hope for great things. West was easily their 'star' performer, and his average of 41 with a highest score of 74 was an extremely good performance. As he is still well under seventeen, much may well be expected from him before he leaves school. Epsom lost their game with St. John's School, Leatherhead, otherwise little fault could be found with their performance against rival Schools. Evans, their crack bowler of last year, again did well, though he did not approach his last year's figures, and Hudson, Macphail, and Handfield-Jones did some useful work with the bat. I note that in one match the boys were set to make 140 in fifty-five minutes, and that they accomplished the feat on the stroke of time. That must have been a really sporting game. Merchant Taylors vastly improved on their last year's form, and had quite a good season, losing but two games out of twelve. They found Brighton College too much for them, as did several of that School's rivals, and were beaten by a good M.C.C. side, which included the ever-famous W.G. It gives one almost a pang to see that the boys ran him out for three! The School owed its strength to two capable batsmen, Greenhill and Roe, the former of whom, I gather, will captain the side again next year, and two excellent bowlers Wadham and Isaac, the best pair they have had for many years. I am sorry however, to hear a grumble about the general fielding, and I trust that 'Captain' Greenhill will see that this censure is not deserved next year. No very startling news reaches me from Christ's Hospital. There seems to have been nothing very distinguished in their batting, with the possible exception of Pennington, who again heads the list. The bowling honours were well divided. Against their rival Schools honours were fairly evenly divided, with three wins, two losses, and a draw not in their favour. After several seasons of comparative failure, Forest School experienced a welcome return to form, and turned out a very creditable side. But here, as at many other schools, it is necessary to point out that the fielding was not so good as it ought to have been. They were distinctly strong in batting, every man on the side having a double-figure average. S. R. Martyn, the captain, must be an extremely useful cricketer, for he heads the batting list, and is virtually top of the bowling brigade too, while R. V. Martyn is very little inferior to him in either direction. Nicholas and Beech are also worthy of mention, the former a reliable stumper as well as run-getter. Oundle, on the whole, had a successful season, with six wins and four losses, and, be it noted, no drawn games. Their one School game with Leys School, was won handsomely by some level batting and bowling. But I again venture to suggest that one School match, and that confined to a single day, is a small allowance. The success of the team was due mainly to the consistent batting of Smith, the wicket-keeping of Matthews, and the bowling of Coombs.

The competition for chief honours among the Scotch Schools produced a keen struggle, though, owing to the fact that three Schools, Fettes, Loretto, and the Academy shared the honours, the result can hardly be called satisfactory. They can be said to have scored off the majority of English Schools in having a really fine summer, with the inevitable result that the bat beat the ball all the season. But I imagine that this would have held good even if the weather had continued 'soft,' for there seems to have been very little bowling talent, while there were an unusual number of excellent batsmen. Further, a wet summer would hardly have improved the fielding, which, I am assured, was in the main very indifferent. Which of the three schools was the best it would be difficult to say. Loretto were beaten by Fettes and the latter by

ETON v. HARROW.

Played at LORD'S, Friday, Saturday, July 8, 9.—Eton and Harrow have been meeting on the cricket field for over a hundred years, but they have never played a match quite so remarkable as that of 1910. Indeed in the whole history of cricket there has been nothing more sensational. After following their innings Eton were only four ahead with nine wickets down, and yet in the end they won the game by nine runs. The nearest parallel to this finish that one can recall was one between Lancashire and Oxford University in 1888. On that occasion the county followed-on, and managed to win although when their eighth wicket fell they were still 17 runs behind. The struggle between the two public schools last season will be known for all time as Fowler's match. Never has a school cricketer risen to the occasion in more astonishing fashion. When Harrow went in with only 55 to get, Fowler took command of the game, secured eight wickets—five of them bowled down—for 23 runs and brought off what might fairly be described as a forty to one chance.

Until the second afternoon was far advanced the match proved one-sided to a degree. On the first day Harrow going in on a soft, but by no means difficult pitch, ran up a total of 232, and when bad light caused stumps to be drawn, five of Eton's best wickets had fallen for 40 runs. By far the best batting for Harrow was shown in different styles by Wilson and Hillyard. In first and out fifth wicket down at 133 Wilson took two hours and a quarter to get his 53, his play all the time being very patient and watchful. Hillyard, more vigorous in his methods, scored 62 in an hour and three-quarters, among his hits being a six to square leg and half-a-dozen 4's. On Saturday morning, Eton's first innings was soon finished off for 67, and a follow-on against a balance of 165 was involved. At first things went so badly that half the wickets were down for 65, no one being able to get the ball away on the slow pitch. The first change in the game came with the partnership between Fowler and Wigan, 42 runs being added for the sixth wicket in fifty minutes. When Wigan left, Boswell, who had been last man in the first innings, joined Fowler and another good start was made, three-quarters of an hour's play producing 57 runs. Still despite Fowler's heroic efforts—his 64 was the highest innings in the match—the position was reached of Eton being only four runs ahead with a wicket to fall. Then began the cricket which will for ever make the match memorable. Kaye joined Manners, and so finely and fearlessly did Manners hit that in less than twenty-five minutes 50 runs were put on, the total being carried from 169 to 219. A remarkable catch in the slips at last brought the innings to an end, Hopley just reaching the ball and turning it to Jameson, who held it a few inches from the ground. There can be no doubt that Earle, the Harrow captain, who had made many changes in the early part of the innings, was at fault in keeping himself and Hillyard on too long. In the case of any ordinary match the ground would have been half empty before the Eton innings closed, but an Eton and Harrow crowd is a law to itself and when Harrow went in with 55 to get about 10,000 people watched the cricket. Whatever their feelings, they must have been glad they stayed as they may never see such a finish again. Probably Harrow made a mistake in having the heavy roller put on. At any rate Fowler was able at once to bowl his off-break with deadly effect. He bowled Wilson in the first over; at eight he bowled Hopley; and at the same total, Turnbull, the left-handed hitter, was caught in the long field. Earle seemed likely to win the match easily enough for Harrow, but after he had hit up 13 runs, a catch at slip sent him back at 21. Without the addition of a run, Monckton was bowled and Hillyard well caught low down at short mid-on. In this way, as the result of half an hour's cricket, six wickets were down for 21, Fowler having taken them all. Blount was caught and bowled at 26 by Steel, who had just gone on for Kaye, and then Jameson, who had been batting for nearly forty minutes without getting a run, was so badly hurt that for a few minutes the game had to be delayed. With victory in sight, the Eton team played the keenest possible cricket, nothing being thrown away in the field. A yorker bowled Straker at 29, and, after Graham had hit a three, Jameson was bowled by Fowler. It was not to be expected that Graham and Alexander would get the 23 runs still required, but they made a desperate effort, carrying the score to 45 or only ten to win. Then a catch low down in the slips got rid of Alexander and a wonderful match was over. The scene of enthusiasm at the finish was quite indescribable. From the time he went on at 21, Steel with his leg breaks gave Fowler excellent support and the Eton fielding all round was magnificent.

Eighty-five matches have been played, of which Eton have won thirty-two Harrow thirty-five, and eighteen have been drawn. This is the generally published record, but Harrow men object very strongly to the game in 1805 being treated as a regular contest between the two schools, contending that it is no more correct to count that than the fixture in 1857, for boys under twenty, which has been rejected. The result of a match in 1800, won by Eton, has recently been discovered and some other matches are known to have been played but no records of them have yet been found.

Seventeen three-figure innings have now been played in matches between the two schools, as follows:—

183 D. C. Boles (in 1904), Eton	112* A. W. T. Daniel (in 1860), Harrow
152 E. Bayley (in 1841), Eton	108 C. J. Ottaway (in 1869) Eton
142 T. G. O. Cole (in 1897), Harrow	108 R. B. Foare (in 188*), Harrow
135 A. K. Watson (in 1885), Harrow	101 H. C. Pilkington (in 1896), Eton
124 J. H. Stogden (in 1895), Harrow	100 E. Crawley (in 1815), Harrow
120 B. J. T. Bosanquet (in 1896), Eton	100 E. N. S. Crankshaw (in 1903), Eton

114 C. P. Foley (in 1886), Eton	131 M. C. Bird (in 1907), Harrow
113 W. F. Forbes (in 1876), Eton

In making his 183 Boles set up a new record for the match, beating the 152 obtained in 1841 by Emilius Bayley, now the Rev. Sir John Robert Laurie. Bird in 1907 by scoring 100 not out and 131 performed a feat without precedent in the match.

RUGBY v. MARLBOROUGH.

Played at LORD'S, Wednesday, Thursday, July 27, 28.—Rugby gained a brilliant victory over Marlborough by an innings and seven runs—a result brought about by the dashing batting of Andrews and the highly effective bowling of Linnington and Le Gros. After Marlborough had been dismissed in two hours and forty minutes for 221, of which number Shuldham contributed 70 out of the first 107 in an hour, Rugby put together 340 for the loss of eight wickets, Andrews making 103 out of 213 in seventy minutes. On the second day thirteen runs were added to Rugby's total, and Marlborough, utterly at sea with Le Gros' fast right handed bowling, were got rid of a second time for 125 and soundly beaten. Linnington carried off the bowling honours on the first day and Le Gros on the second, the latter taking nine wickets for 49 runs. Between them the pair accounted for all twenty wickets. The defeat of Marlborough was a great surprise.

CHELTENHAM v. HAILEYBURY.

Played at LORD'S, Friday, Saturday, July 29, 30.—There was some brilliant hitting at the opening of this School match, no fewer than 587 runs being scored for the loss of thirteen wickets in the course of a long day's cricket. Cheltenham batted first and declared their innings with nine men out for 471. They made runs at the rate of 110 an hour, Dew and Durand starting by putting together 160 for the first partnership. Dew was second out, just before luncheon, with the total at 267. He hit a 5 and eleven 4's, and was batting two hours and twenty-five minutes. Further attractive hitting was shown by Wise and Fawcett. Haileybury lost three wickets for 116 on the Friday, and on the following day, having to follow against 292, they were put out a second time for 289, and were thus beaten by an innings and three runs. Vincent, their top scorer in the first innings, made a superb effort to lessen the severity of the reverse by contributing 118 not out in three hours—a most praiseworthy display.

M.C.C. v. PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Played at LORD'S, Monday, Tuesday, August 1, 2.—Outplayed on Bank Holiday despite a fine innings by E. C. K. Clarke of Westminster, the Schools made a brilliant attempt to snatch a victory on the second day, and in the end only lost by two wickets. At the end of Monday's cricket, with an innings apiece completed, the boys had made 22 without loss at their second attempt, and were still 104 runs behind. On resuming on the Tuesday, F. H. Knott of Tonbridge, who afterwards did such brilliant work for Kent, scored 155 out of 242 in less than two hours and a half, hitting one 5 and nineteen 4's—chiefly drives and skilful strokes on the leg side. In the end the M.C.C., put in to make 125 on a difficult wicket had eight men out for 72, but they won without further loss. Fowler of Eton dismissed six batsmen for 49 runs, and by getting rid of Lee, Ricketts, and Christie with consecutive balls did the "hat trick."

WINCHESTER v. ETON.

Played at WINCHESTER, Friday, Saturday, June 24, 25.—Rain robbed Eton of victory, heavy showers on the second afternoon seriously delaying the game when Winchester were in a hopeless position. The great feature of the match was the bowling of A. I. Steel—son of the famous A. G. Steel—who secured eleven wickets for 53 runs. He met with remarkable success when Eton declared and set their opponents to get 228 runs in the last innings. Winchester lost seven batsmen for 31, and Steel dismissed them all at a cost of only 17 runs. Batsmen generally fared badly on the wet wicket, but W. T. Holland played an admirable innings for Eton.

HAVERFORD COLLEGE MATCHES.

PLAYED 15—Won 3, Lost 11, Drawn 1.

The Haverford College (U.S.A.) side that toured England during the summer was not very successful. Many of the Public School Elevens proved far too strong for them, but victories were gained over Clifton, Harrow, and Shrewsbury, as a set off against many heavy defeats.

UPPINGHAM SCHOOL v. HAVERFORD COLLEGE.

Played at UPPINGHAM, Saturday, June 25.—Haverford lost their first match by 156 runs.
