PUBLIC SCHOOL CRICKET.

Circumstances prevented Captain Seton dealing with Public School Cricket in 1906 for Wisden, and, all my efforts to procure a substitute proving unsuccessful, I had no choice but to utilise as best I could the information kindly supplied to me from various schools. I shall not attempt to place the leading schools in any order of merit, as comparisons between teams that do not meet each other in the field must in the nature of things be more or less fallacious and misleading. The late Mr. W. J. Ford, who took great delight in his work for Wisden, was very fond of grouping the schools according to different grades of merit, but his plan always struck me as being ingenious rather than convincing. Of first-hand knowledge of school cricket in 1906 I possess no more than could be derived from watching very carefully the Eton and Harrow match at Lord's. So far as it went that match was extremely instructive, and as regards the future of amateur cricket full of hopeful features. I cannot remember, during a fairly long experience, having seen in a school game two wicket-keepers of higher promise than D. R. Brandt and N. C. Tufnell, and all going well there should be much distinction in store for the two leading members of the Eton eleven—P. Pearson-Gregory as a batsman, and C. E. Hatfeild as a bowler. I am told on authority I cannot question that M. C. Bird, the Harrow batsman, has all the makings of a first-rate player, but unfortunately he has never yet done justice to himself at Lord's, a certain lack of self-control standing in his way, so I must take his good qualities on trust. It is good news that the best of the Eton and Harrow players will, during the forthcoming season, have their chance in University cricket. Tufnell, now on tour with the M.C.C.'s team in New Zealand, is going up to Cambridge, and Brandt, C. E. Hatfeild, and Pearson-Gregory will all be at Oxford. There may not be an immediate opening for the two young wicket-keepers but their day is sure to come. I may mention here that Oxford—sadly in need of fresh talent—will also have C. V. L. Hooman of Charterhouse who, judging by results, was the best of all the school batsmen in 1906. With these few words of introduction I will give in detail the criticisms of the various elevens that in response to my requests for information were courteously and promptly sent to me.

Beginning with ETON, my correspondent, writing with fullest knowledge says:—“Gregory was, in my opinion, quite a first-class batsman and Hatfeild a first-class bowler; Tufnell a very good wicket-keeper and useful bat. The side all round was well up to the average in batting and bowling, but the catching was not up to the standard of the last few years. The ground fielding was good. Our batting was fairly sound all through and we had no tail, but our chief strength lay in the bowling which was both good and varied. C. E. Hatfeild played four times against Harrow and was on the winning side three times, the other game being drawn. The following members of the team will be here next summer:—H. S. Hatfeild (captain), K. I. Gibson, R. L. Benson, T. G. Curtis, J. M. Naylor, and H. M. Sprot.” From HARROW a high authority writes:—“We had a good batting side and a really fine fielding side, but our bowling was weak and in the first innings at Lord's beneath contempt. M. C. Bird played some very fine innings and at his best is very good, but he is too dashing at the start and apt to play too much to the gallery. He must learn to play more steadily if he is to realise the high expectations formed of him. D. R. Brandt was a good bat but very apt to despise slow bowlers and consequently to fall a victim to them. R. E. Eiloart, very taking in style and also a good bat, and M. Falcon, who played a fine innings at Lord's, should train on well. B. Osborne and E. H. Crake scarcely came up to expectations. J. S. Royle is a splendid hitter but too fond of pulling the straight ball. Lang, Biedermann, and Griffin could all make runs. What we lost in C. Reunert, a left-handed bat, and much the most watchful and cautious of all, is incalculable. We suffered from too much dash and wanted steadiness. Bird had to do most of the bowling and probably his batting suffered in consequence. Griffin and Falcon trained off at the end of the season as bowlers, and when C. Reunert was damaged we lost our steadiest bowler who could always keep up an end. Brandt kept wicket superbly. Crake was ever alert in the field as was Eiloart, and their example being well followed up by Bird, Royle, and Beidermann, the side as a whole was very strong in fielding. Crake was a keen captain who knew his team well and kept them together. Had C. Reunert been available Lord's would have told a very different tale. Bird is captain for 1907 and the following members of the eleven are also staying on:—M. Falcon, J. S. Royle, A. H. Lang, H. E. C. Beidermann, and G. A. Laverton."

I gather that WINCHESTER had rather an uneventful season, winning two matches, losing two, and leaving nine unfinished. The batting was good, and in the match against Eton a record score of 373 was obtained; the bowling, though fairly good throughout the summer, did not come up to expectation against Eton, Molineux, the best man, being out of form. To judge from the comments in the Wykhamist, there was plenty of talent in the eleven, the side being strong in batting nearly all through. A. G. Pawson, described as much above the average as a wicket-keeper, will in 1907 again be captain and will have six old choices with him.

My CHELTENHAM correspondent writes: "We had a remarkably strong eleven, as the results prove. Out of eleven matches, we won seven, and lost only one—against the Old Cheltonians by 19 runs. This record was due to brilliant batting, but above all to a really fine pair of bowlers in J. C. Coker and R. T. H. Mackenzie, who throughout the season bowled magnificently. Both bowl right hand fast, and Coker swings considerably from leg. Buist bowled well at the beginning of the season, and Mackay recovered his break and length at the end. The bowling was always sound, which is borne out by the fact that only three innings of over 200 were scored against us. With regard to batting, we had three really fine bats in Salter, Mackenzie, and Oliver. All three were consistent, Salter batting steadily and well on any wicket. Mackenzie, a fine forcing bat, played several dashing innings, amongst them a splendid 132 against Haileybury at Lord's. Oliver, the most improved bat in the team and perhaps the most stylish, played many really fine innings during the term. He scored freely in every direction. To back up the three best batsmen there were J. I. Piggott, C. H. Pigg, G. G. Rawson, and J. B. White, the last-named of whom hit up 120 against Marlborough. The fielding improved on that of the previous year, but we were still rather slow on the ground, though good in catching. J. I. Piggott is captain for 1907, and will have only three old choices with him—J. B. White, D. O. Light, and C. N. Buist. However, we had a capable second eleven, and hope for another successful season."

From CHARTERHOUSE I have not received much in the way of criticism. The eleven played ten matches, of which they won four, lost one, and left five unfinished. However, the two school matches were won by good margins, Charterhouse beating Westminster by nine wickets and Wellington by five wickets. The presence of Hooman would alone have lent distinction to the side, that remarkable young batsman having an average of 85—a public school record for 1906. There were three other averages of over thirty and three more of over twenty, so that the batting was evidently strong all through. The bowling was not so good, but Balfour did well.

The report from RUGBY states that the team was an exceptionally good one and that K. T. Cox, though himself rather out of form, made a good captain. The fine cricket showed against Marlborough at Lord's afforded keen satisfaction. D. Watson scored 80 and not out 45 and took nine wickets, C. L. Cole, a fast right-handed bowler, took seven wickets for 27 runs, and H. B. Roderick obtained two scores of over 50. Rugby, like several other schools, were fortunate in having a capital wicket-keeper, R. C. Proctor being highly thought of. Rugby played no school match except the one with Marlborough. D. Watson is captain for 1907, and two old choices will be with him—C. L. Cole and J. R. Tylden.

My MARLBOROUGH correspondent writes:—"Marlborough had rather an unfortunate season, losing both their school matches. They were a side full of promise, but did not come up to expectation. In both the school matches, but especially at Lord's, Wyer stood out as the all-round man of the team. Scott and Ireland were both unlucky, though the latter started the season in excellent style. Womersley, a very steady batsman, nearly always got runs and was a splendid field. In bowling the team were very weak. Clover improved greatly as a wicket-keeper and should be really good next season. In the match against the Marlborough Blues Lagden and Clover put on 130 runs for the last wicket, the school winning on the stroke of time. J. F. Ireland is captain for 1907, the other old choices available being A. D. Womersley, E. Clover, R. O. Lagden, S. W. Wills, and A. Tylor."

UPPINGHAM did not have a good season, winning only one match out of eight, losing four, and drawing three. This record, however, was by no means so bad as it looks on paper, as Uppingham drew with Repton after making themselves practically safe on the first innings, and beat Haileybury by eight wickets. The bowling was generally good, reaching its highest point in the matches with Haileybury and the Free Foresters. W. H. Ramsbotham is captain for 1907. He had a batting average last season of 40.

From REPTON comes the following letter:—"Our season here did not compare at all favourably with the three previous years. The chief reason was that all our veterans had gone in a body and we were left with youngsters without experience. If our bowlers come on as we expect we should return to the paths of glory next season." I am told further that the team were not so well captained as could have been wished. A period of comparative ill-successes was not surprising, as no school could hope to replace immediately so wonderful an all-round cricketer as J. N. Crawford. The batting despite some breakdowns was on the whole good and the fielding commendable, the weak point being the bowling. Oliver, medium pace to fast right-hand, was by far the best, the others being only change bowlers."

From MALVERN I have received quite a glowing account. The letter reads:—"Malvern did very well indeed, in fact better than it has done for many years, and I feel sure we were the strongest public school side in England. Among our wins we beat the Worcestershire Club and Ground, the team including seven professionals who played regularly for the county. Thanks to Tuff's fine bowling we got them out for 89 and made 333 ourselves." I am told that E. L. Mellin, who after four years of great success in the eleven has gone up to Cambridge, captained the team well, and was at the top of his form in the latter part of the season. F. T. Mann, described as a very fine bat, will be captain in 1907. Tuff and Charrington were the crack bowlers of the eleven, Tuff being especially good.

The information from WESTMINSTER is as follows:—"Westminster had a fairly successful season, although three victories do not look very much. We had the best of a draw with the R.M.A., Woolwich, and on several occasions we got our opponents out for small scores, but the batting being rather weak we were unable to drive the advantage home. P. T. Rawlings, who again captained the side well, developed into a brilliant bat, though a little uncertain. His innings of 131 against Woolwich was especially fine, as he went from 40 to 100 in forty minutes. He had bad luck at the end of the season. A glance at the averages shows that the bowling was remarkably strong. E. Hepburn's fast bowling was admirable and he bore the brunt of the work. In W. R. Birchall we had a capital wicket-keeper. The fielding on the whole was good, particularly in the Charterhouse match. F. G. Turner, captain for 1907, was ill during the Easter holidays and did not find his form until the end of the season. With seven members of the team staying on the outlook is very hopeful."

CLIFTON played eleven matches, winning three, losing five, and drawing three. The college magazine, The Cliftonian, describes T. D. Morrison, who took 41 wickets, as a promising left-handed bowler with a good deal of swerve and break. E. P. Reynolds seems to have been the best bat in the team, and it is said that the school has never had so energetic a captain. Of F. H. Martin, the new captain, the criticism is that he has a good eye and makes use of his height, but that he must play straighter, use his wrists, and play his strokes through if he is to be a really good bat. So far as I can judge the side was not of more than ordinary strength.

SHERBORNE took part in ten matches, winning four, losing only two—against the Incogniti and a strong team of Old Shirburnians—and drawing four. The draw against the M.C.C. was a moral defeat, but the team had rather the best of the position against Tonbridge School. With regard to the eleven I have received the following critical remarks:—"The batting of the side was distinctly strong, seven or eight men being able to make runs and make them well. The school lost much through the absence of the captain, G. L. Cole, through a 'football knee,' but May captained the eleven extremely well. The team had one really good fast-medium bowler in E. S. Hornidge, but apart from him there was no bowling of any class. The fielding all through was excellent—quite up to the high standard of recent years at Sherborne. Very few catches were dropped and the ground fielding was very smart. May as wicket-keeper was as good as ever; he has one more year at school before going to Cambridge. To sum up, a distinctly good school eleven."

From HAILEYBURY I have received nothing in the way of criticism, but I am told that seven members of the eleven remain at the school.

BEDFORD COUNTY SCHOOL considering although they had few old choices enjoyed a very successful season, a gratifying feature of the cricket being a marked improvement in the fielding. As nine members of the team are still at school the outlook for 1907 is very hopeful. BEDFORD GRAMMAR SCHOOL played fifteen first eleven matches of which six were won and five drawn. C. B. Atkinson is described as a splendid school batsman—very watchful with fine hitting power.

ETON V. HARROW.

Played at LORD'S, Friday, Saturday, July 13, 14.—Outplaying Harrow for more than a day and a half Eton won the schools' match by four wickets, but their otherwise good cricket was discounted by the extreme difficulty they experienced in making the 95 runs required in the last innings. On the general cricket shown they were much the stronger side, but if a catch had not been dropped at the crisis of the game they might easily have been beaten. There were five old choices in the Eton eleven—C. E. Hatfeild the captain, Tufnell, Finch-Hatton, Gold, and H. S. Hatfeild—and four in that of Harrow—E. H. Crane, captain for the second year in succession, Brandt, Bird, and Eiloart. C. Reunert of the 1905 team was prevented from playing for Harrow by an accident. The match was unfortunate as regards the weather on the first day, the atmosphere turning very cold and rain causing a delay of an hour, but the Saturday was bright and warm. No falling off in public interest was noticeable the company numbering about 16,000 each afternoon. It may be mentioned here that J. S. Royle is a son of Rev. V. F. Royle—perhaps the finest cover-point the cricket field has ever known—and P. Pearson-Gregory, quite the hero of the match, a son of the once well-known Middlesex batsman T. S. Pearson-Gregory.

The first day's cricket went considerably in favour of Eton who after getting rid of their opponents for 239, scored 247 for six wickets. The Harrow innings was a curious one. Though the Eton bowling was never really mastered runs came at the rate of nearly a 100 an hour. It is a question whether steadier methods would not have answered better. The best partnership produced 60 runs in half an hour for the fourth wicket. Crane, who showed more judgment than any of his colleagues, was batting nearly two hours for his 68, going in third wicket down at 42 and being out ninth at 230. He made his first 50 runs in little more than an hour but became very cautious afterwards. Eiloart in his 54 made some good on-drives and was skilful in scoring on the leg side. C. E. Hatfeild kept up his reputation as an excellent school-bowler, obtaining five wickets for 56 runs. He was rather too ready to take himself off, an unusual fault in captains who are also bowlers. Eton began badly, losing two wickets for 36 runs, but then followed a splendid stand by Pearson-Gregory and Gibson and, as the result of a couple of hours' actual cricket, they put on 163 runs. Pearson-Gregory who was kept out of the Eton eleven in 1905 by illness, showed splendid cricket. In his case natural talent had evidently been helped by skilful and assiduous coaching. Playing in most finished style he scored all round the wicket like a master. On his form in the match he was a long way the best bat in the two elevens, but the Harrow authorities thought very highly of Bird, who unfortunately failed to do himself justice. Bowled at last by a yorker Pearson-Gregory was at the wickets two hours and ten minutes for his 90, his hits including thirteen 4's. Gibson though not so finished in method as his partner, played uncommonly well. On the Saturday morning Gold hit with great brilliancy and received such excellent support that the overnight score of 247 was carried to 365. Benson and Curtis added 34 runs in about as many minutes for the last wicket.

On going in against a balance of 135 Harrow, despite some sound cricket by Brandt, fared so badly that when the eighth wicket fell they were only 21 runs ahead. However, Falcon and Griffin put on 62 in little more than half an hour, Griffin making 40 of them, and the total in the end reached 229. Falcon, who was run out by a splendid piece of fielding by Curtis on the boundary in front of square leg, played finely after an uncertain start. C. E. Hatfeild this time only took one wicket, but he had wretched luck, repeatedly missing the stumps after beating the batsmen. Eton were only left with 95 to get and everyone expected that they would win the match without any trouble. Very soon, however, the position became critical. Three wickets were lost for seven runs and thenceforward the play right up to the finish was exciting to a degree. Bird and Eiloart bowled wonderfully well and were backed up by splendid work in the field. When the fifth wicket fell Eton still wanted 42 runs to win but Pearson-Gregory and H. S. Hatfeild took the score from 53 to 70. At this point Gregory, who though lucky in making two or three strokes that fell out of reach, played with great coolness, was caught at mid-on. With four wickets to fall 25 runs were wanted and in the excitement anything might have happened. Just at this critical moment Harrow experienced a piece of cruel illfortune, Brandt, who had been keeping wicket in marvellous form, missing Naylor when that batsman had made a single. There was no forgiveness for the error, the remaining runs being hit off without further loss and Eton winning a great game by four wickets. Apart from Pearson-Gregory's batting, nothing in the match was so remarkable as the wicket-keeping. Brandt was perhaps a little better than Tufnell but both were up to the highest standard of school cricket. As regards results Brandt had much the best of it, getting rid of six batsmen as against Tufnell's three.

Eighty-one matches have been played, of which Eton have won thirty-one, Harrow thirty-three, and seventeen have been drawn. This is the generally published record, but Harrow men object very strongly to the game in 1805 being treated as a regular contest between the two schools, contending that it is no more correct to count that than the fixture in 1857, for boys under twenty, which has been rejected.

Fifteen three-figure innings have now been played in matches between the two schools, as follows :—

183 D. C. Boles (in 1904), Eton.	113 W. F. Forbes (in 1876), Eton.
152 E. Bayley (in 1841), Eton.	112* A. W. T. Daniel (in 1860), Harrow.

RUGBY v. MARLBOROUGH.

Played at Lord's, Wednesday, Thursday, August 1, 2.—There was a curious similarity in the start of each innings, Rugby losing three wickets for seven runs, and Marlborough three for nineteen, and then what Proctor and Roderick did for the former Scott and Wyer practically accomplished for the others. Rugby had the best of the game on the first day, for late in their innings Watson and Snowdon put together 132 runs in seventy-five minutes for the eighth wicket. Marlborough lost six wickets for 175 on Wednesday, and were 60 behind at the close of an innings apiece. Roderick, Watson, and Snowdon again did good work in the Light Blues' second innings, and Hancock, batting perhaps better than any of them, scored a stylish 64. After Rugby had declared, Marlborough, far from getting the 301 requisite to win, failed so completely that in an hour and a quarter they were dismissed for 73, and beaten by 227 runs. Cole bowled splendidly at the finish.

CHELTENHAM v. HAILEYBURY.

Played at LORD'S, Friday, Saturday, August 3, 4.—The feature of this school match, which was won somewhat easily by Cheltenham by 167 runs, was the magnificent hitting of Mackenzie, who, going in first, made so light of the Haileybury bowling that he scored 132 out of 242 in a couple of hours. He had a splendid record for his school in 1905, and plays in glasses. Despite his cricket there was not a great deal in the position at the end of Friday's play, when Haileybury had five wickets down for 219, and on the Saturday they got within 50 of their opponents. Cheltenham, however, were able to declare fairly early, and in the end won in decisive fashion.

WINCHESTER v. ETON.

Played at WINCHESTER, Friday, Saturday, July 6, 7.—For the second year the match was left drawn, the pitch being so much in favour of batsmen that there was never much chance of finishing the game. Going in first Eton made 336, but they owed a great deal to H. S. Hatfeild and Sprot, who added 114 runs for the ninth wicket. Hatfeild, Gibson, and Sprot all batted very nicely against some fair bowling, while the fielding was smart. In an hour and a half at the close Winchester scored 124 for four wickets, and on the second day ran their total to 373, or 37 ahead of that of Eton. Hain, Bullock, and Evans all played a good forcing game. At their second attempt the Etonians batted carefully, and it was inevitable long before the close, that the match would be drawn. Pawson, the Winchester captain, kept wicket well.
